

Contrast

If the elements of your design are slightly different, make them really different!

This will help your viewer process the information that is on your page.

Contrast

If the elements of your design are slightly different, make them really different!

This will help your viewer process the information that is on your page.

Repetition

Use similar elements to give your design a more unified feeling.

Repetition will also help your viewer understand which information on your page goes together.

Can be graphic or text.

Repetition

1 Use similar elements to give your design a more unified feeling.

2 Repetition will also help your viewer understand which information on your page goes together.

3 Can be graphic or text.

Alignment

Avoid scattering elements across your page.

Alignment will help to guide the viewers eye through the page.

Alignment can be left, center or right - different alignments give a different feel to your design.

Alignment

Avoid scattering elements across your design.

Alignment will help to guide the viewer's eye through the page.

Alignment can be left, center or right - different alignments give a different feel to your design.

Proximity

Group similar information together.

Organize your page so it is immediately obvious when items belong together.

Now that you have a basic understanding of these principles, try to apply them to your own designs!

Proximity

Group similar information together.
Organize your page so it is immediately obvious when items belong together.

Now that you have a basic understanding of these principles, try to apply them to your own designs!